

Anarchists' Work.

PARIS, November 8.—An explosion occurred in this city this morning by which two policemen were fatally injured. The affair was undoubtedly the work of anarchists, who were seeking revenge upon the Carmaux Mining Company, whose long struggle with their employees was amicably settled a few days ago. Early this morning two policemen were passing along Avenue de l'Opera. When they arrived in front of the Carmaux Mining Company they saw close in front of them a curious iron vessel resembling a saucepan. A police officer picked the vessel up and carried it to the police station for examination.

The officers had been investigating only a few minutes when the vessel exploded with terrific force, instantly killing two policemen and so terribly wounding another that the doctors say his recovery is impossible. Quite a number of officers were in the station at the time, and it is considered miraculous that no more were killed. The windows of the building were blown out, plastering was torn off, and furniture broken and scattered in every direction—in fact, the whole interior of the building was wrecked, and so great was the force of the explosion that even the outer walls were damaged.

Boston Girl. What a blow the ancient myths have had in the past few years! Nobody believes in William Tell these days.

Chicago Girl. I should say not. And how is Ben Butler now?—Judge.

Lightning never strikes twice in the same place, they say.

No?
No.
Well, how do you account for it?

Must be manipulated by a woman, I suppose.—Detroit Tribune:

What are you storming about Josiah? inquired Mrs. Chugwater. Nothing! roared Mr. Chugwater, throwing his hat on the lounge. Nothing, only I have made a fool of myself again. That's all! I got a three-cent piece in change somewhere this morning, and I find I passed it on a street car conductor a little while ago for a dime and

I have used your Salvation Oil and can say it is the finest thing I ever saw for all kinds of pains or sprains and can recommend it to any one, N. C. Adams 213 16th St. Cairo, Ills.
